Maritime Club Will Dine at Ritz-Carlton

Pres. Falconer, of Toronto, and Several Other Prominent Men Will Speak

The fourth annual banquet of the McGill Maritime Club, at the Ritz-Carlton, this evening, promises to be one of the best functions of the college session, and will, no doubt, equal, if not surpass, any of previous seasons. The widely-known and popular guest, President Falconer, with the long list of other good speakers, has drawn a large number and it has been found necessary to abandon the "Blue Room," and the dinner will be held in the more spacious "Green Room" downstairs. The menu has been well looked after, and the most fastidious epicurean need not go away dissatisfied. The music will be furnished as last year, by Brown's Orchestra, and will be well up to the mark. All indications point to a most enjoyable evening, and as President Falconer has to leave for Toronto to-night on the eleven o'clock train, the dinner has been called for 7.30. The executive of the club is composed of the following: Hon. pres., Dr. Andrew MacPhail; Hon. vice-president, Dr. Chas. Sullivan; president, B. O. Kinney, Med. '16; vice-president, F. E. Gillison, Med. '16; secretary, W. L. Grant, Sc. '15; treasurer, A. A. Ferguson, Sc. '15; B. L. Laggie, Sc. '16; B. C. Keating, Med. '18; C. J. Timmarsh, Arts. '16; W. H. Hatcher, Arts. '16; and C. R. McGill Defeated Queens After Hard Fought Game

Phenomenal Defence Work of the Red and White Team, and Especially That of Mann, Overcame Fast Skating and the Spectacular Combination of the Tricolor

The McGill team kept in the running for the Intercollegiate championship when they took the measure of the fast Queen's team Saturday afternoon at the Arena, winning out by five goals to two. Although the Queen's team had as much of the play, if not more, than the Red and White seven, yet they failed in effectiveness partly due to the clever work of Mann in the McGill goal, partly due to the defense of the Red and White team and most of all due to their own weak shooting. Time after time shots went wide that might have lodged in behind "Shorty."

The game started sharply at 2.45. After a preliminary talk Referee McLennan lined the men up and the game started. At first the play was a trifle slow, neither team seemed to get working. The play was fairly even between the two teams during this period. Both sevens managed to score twice.

In the second half play began to liven up and both teams strived hard to break the tie and pull ahead. During this period Queen's had slightly the best of the play, but unfortunately for them, failed to gain any material advantage. The McGill men went ahead, Kendall netting a pretty goal on a rebound from a shot by Parsons. During this second period Coach Roberts worked an intercollegiate forward line against the Queen's team. Ross, Kelsch, Work and Blair all having a turn at the Tricolor. This proved a very wise move for the second team men worked like fiends and kept the Queen's men away from Mann while they themselves managed to have one goal. It also served the purpose of keeping the regular players fresh for the last period.

MCGILL HAD BEST OF PLAY.

The McGill team had decidedly the best of the last period. The Queen's team rushed time and again but failed to penetrate the McGill defense. The game became fast and exciting in this last period of the game. The Tricolor used all their men on the attack in an endeavor to score. Whyte made many splendid rushes up the ice but the forwards after receiving his passes in good positions failed to get their shots directed on the goal. The McGill forwards were fresh after their rest in the second period and they played a strong game till the final whistle, charging down on Smith in regular order and checking back every time to help out the defense. The defense of both teams was steady at all times. Queen's were without the services of Goddard who is down with a case of measles and could not play. Space reduced all the time and worked fairly well alongside Whyte. The Queen's forwards are faster and heavier than the McGill attack but they failed to work in unison. At centre ice they played well together but failed to produce the necessary "pep" around the nets. Time and again they would rush in but generally lost the puck through weak or wild shooting.

The McGill forwards did not combine as well as they might have, many times their passes were awry, but they all worked hard individually and were like bees around the Tricolor net. Close in on the nets the Red and White men proved very effective, several of their goals being shot from right in on top of Smith.

Mann in goal for McGill, was the same old reliable player, and he had plenty to do during the session. His rushes and blocking of a man who had got by the defence, were as much in evidence as on former occasions, while he picked out the fast ones with the greatest ease.

KENDALL STARRED.

Kendall was undoubtedly the best McGill man on the ice, and it was in a great measure due to the fact that Queen's failed to stop the speedy defence man, that the Red and White gained and maintained her lead. In the first rush of the game, Kendall sent one in on Smith that he never

Med. Banquet Rechristened 'War Dinner'

Addresses of the Evening Ring
With Expressions of Patriotic Fervour

The spirit of the times was probably never more generally and persistently expressed at a dinner of the Undergraduate Medical Society, than it was on Saturday evening when the thirty-third annual banquet was held at the Place Viger Hotel. The toastmaster, with splendid Canadian support, with the wondrous part that the whole medical profession is playing in this heroic struggle. The guest of honor was instituted in his praise of the McGill General Hospital and its splendid staff, the presence of Prof. R. P. Campbell, lately returned from Salisbury, the Marcelline, which concluded the event, the good wishes of Military Queen's and Varsity and the appeal of Laval for the college to stand as brothers—then to cap it all, the new war revenue stamps on liquid refreshments made their first appearance at a McGill affair. The function is bound to be remembered as the "War Dinner."

Following the excellent dinner which was served shortly after eight in the Oak Dining Room, Archie R. Bayne, B.A., '15, president of the dinner committee and toastmaster of the evening, called for the customary Royal Toast, which was drunk with a will. "Our Guest" was proposed by the toastmaster, L. E. Barker, M.D., LL.D., professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins, and physician-in-chief at the hospital replied briefly.

The speaker assured his listeners that he was not going to give out advice, for "how can one generation give laws to another. Each generation has to find its own way, the methods of one will apply to another. Any high-minded man, graduating from a good school, with sincere wishes to be of public service, cannot go far wrong."

The visitor urged the men just entering the profession to keep in touch with the professional literature, to support its libraries and to keep abreast of the ever-shifting current of opinions as expressed in the textbooks. Dr. Barker observed that the General Hospital which McGill is outfitting is unique in this war at any rate and paid a splendid tribute to the staff which will accompany the hospital overseas. "Remember," said the speaker, in closing, "there is no stimulus so great as 'noblesse oblige,' don't forget the stimulus derived from the traditions of Old McGill. All good wishes to every loyal son of Old McGill, the message I bring from the staff and students of Johns Hopkins, which owes so much to this college."

Principal Peterson, who replied to the toast "Alma Mater," proposed by P. S. Campbell '14, complimented Dean Birkett for his industry and perseverance in prosecuting the tedious and strenuous work of organizing the General Hospital, which is bound to be of incalculable and vital service in this crisis. Dr. Peterson was of the opinion that this colossal struggle would not be without moral worth to the national life of this young nation which is now being exposed to the great realities of life.

W. J. E. Mingie, '15, and vice-president of the Medical Society, proposed the health of the Faculty, which was acknowledged by Dr. J. A. Hutchison, '31.

DATE FIXED FOR THE HALL DANCE

The date of the annual dance which the residents of Strathcona Hall are meeting on some days ago, decided to hold, has been set. It will take place in the McGill Union on the evening of February 26th. As usual, the dance will be quite informal and will be open to all McGill students. It is expected that the tickets will be $1.75.

As this is the only social function to be held during the term, it is hoped that a large number will be present. The committee in charge of the affair is making preparations which are bound to assure its success. Tickets may be obtained from any of the following members of the committee: H. Church, chairman; J. E. Affleck, A. Stalker, W. J. Stevens, H. Millere, W. Grant, and F. Gillison, secretary.

Dinner-Dance For C. A. M. C. Volunteers

Enjoyable Function to be Held at the R.V.C. To-night

In recognition of their appreciation of their fellow-students who are leaving shortly for the front, a dinner is being held at the Royal Victoria College this evening, with the McGill Star of the Field Ambulance Corps as guests of honor.

A similar function was held before the Christmas vacation, when a number of the McGill men of the second contingent were entertained, and a most memorable evening was enjoyed by all.

After the dinner, a dance will be held. This will be of the nature of the annual R.V.C. House Dance, many old and new friends having been invited. A prize fund of $100.00 has been drawn up, and the committee in charge of the arrangements are doing all in their power to make this dance even more enjoyable than the many previous ones held in the R.V.C.

Railroaders Entertained Sat. Evening

Kenneth Joseph, '13, Contributes Interesting Paper to Graduates' Association

"Performance of Mikado type engines on the Canadian Pacific" was the subject discussed by some of the railway graduates, at the fifth regular meeting of their association, Saturday night, in the Union.

The paper, a copy of which appears elsewhere in these columns, was admirably written by Kenneth Joseph, who graduated at McGill in 1913. It was unfortunately unable to be present, but the paper was read by the secretary.

An animated discussion took place, and various questions brought up by the paper were thoroughly thrashed out. It was thought that the ratio, expressing so-called "steaming capacity," and obtained by multiplying the tractive effort by the diameter of the drivers and dividing the result by the equivalent heating surface, could be better and more truthfully called "foot-pounds per square foot of equivalent heating surface." This is apparent on working the ratio out, and is simple enough to allow almost any one who has even only slightly studied the questions of design, to do it. It seems wrong, therefore, to consider this ratio as a comparable measure of the "steaming capacity," as it takes no account whatsoever, of the size of boiler and grate, the quality of the fuel, the equivalent evaporation, or the speed at which the boiler can maintain full tractive effort at long cut-off.

This particular point brought out a great deal of the discussion. It was pointed out that though Mr. Joseph's results were extremely interesting, they hardly covered a sufficient number of tests over any extended period, which they would have to do so in order to carry any weight. Three months was said to be the time generally given by authorities, to conduct conclusive tests. It was rather interesting to note, however, that in the case of the one engine, 5016, the heavier load of 860 tons hauled at any average speed over the division of 16.7 miles per hour, gave a coal consumption of 4.69 pounds of coal per horse power hour, while the train of 811 tons operated at a speed of 18.7 miles per hour, gave a figure of 5.18 pounds per horse power hour, thus showing that even the difference of 49 tons decreased the fuel consumption. Of course, as was stated above, just two tests do not form sufficient ground-work for the drawing of conclusions, to which these results followed, though it seemed that these engines have the slight tendency to "nose."

Taken all around, the paper, though short, provoked results valuable to the men and the members present expressed great satisfaction at Mr. Joseph's efforts, and passed a vote of thanks to that effect.

Five members attended, and this is good, considering the fact that the men are spread pretty well all over the eastern lines of the C.P.R. However, the association overcomes the handicap thus imposed, by sending out the papers and asks for writers' criticisms and remarks.
Messrs. Coulin, Hall, Hamer, Henry and Keay were present, as well as Sutcliffe and Schellens, of Transportation '16.
The next meeting is to be held on March 5th, and on that date, a discussion on "Wage schedules" will take place.

MODEL ICE-BREAKER GIVEN TO DR. BARNES

Much interest has been caused by the display in the Physics Building of a beautiful model of the ice breaker "Tarmo." The ship, one of the largest and most modernly equipped of the kind, was built by Sir W. C. Armstrong and the Whitworth Co., Ltd., Newcastle-on-Tyne for the Commercial and Industrial Department of the Imperial Senate for Finland. The model has been on exhibition in the local offices of the company for some time, but has now been presented to Dr. H. T. Barnes as a token of esteem for his invaluable work in helping to reduce to a minimum, the dangers and troubles of navigation in ice-bound waters.

Intermediates Were Defeated In Close Game

Central Y. M. C. A. Basketball
Team Won Out by the Score

LEAGUE PROTESTS SOME MCGILL MEN

The Two Players Protested Are Probably Ferguson and Seath

In a fast game of basketball on Saturday night, the speedy Central Y.M.C.A. team defeated the McGill Intermediates in an inter-provincial league game. The game was very closely contested and it was only after a hard fight that the Central boys won out by 23 points to 16.

THE PLAY.

The teams lined up at 8.30, with the genial Dr. Smith as referee. It was apparent from the determined way in which both teams played that the game was to be stubbornly contested. After a pretty piece of combination work, Maudsley scored the first basket for Central, with a nice shot from the side. McGill secured the ball from centre and Pitts eventually secured and scored the first basket for McGill. Neither side seemed to be able to locate the basket owing to the close checking. Central were awarded a free throw and Maudsley made the point. Central secured the ball from a throw in and Cushing secured and shot.

During this period McGill was awarded several free throws, but were unable to score. McGill scored the next basket, when Hyndman intercepted and passed to J. Ferguson, who scored a hard shot from in front. Brown then replaced Cushing and in the confusion arising from the change, he managed to secure a basket for his team.

McGill again secured from centre and after a fast combination play, Hyndman netted the ball. Central again scored when W. Goodfellow, who was playing guard, left his check and finished a clever piece of combination work by scoring.

When the whistle blew for half time, the score stood 13-11 in favor of Central.

SECOND HALF.

McGill started off well by tying the score when Pitts got a pretty basket from a long pass from H. Ferguson. The score did not remain even for long, as Maudsley again came into prominence with another clever shot. Forbes and Maudsley combined nicely and between them managed to secure three baskets before McGill tallied. It must be said, however, that McGill had as much of the play as Central, but seemed to have considerable hard luck on their shooting. They rallied before the end of the game and the final score read 23-16 in favor of Central.

The line-up follows:

Central (23)	McGill (16)

A PROTEST.

The management of the McGill section have received the following letter:

John Ferguson, Esq.,
Capt. McGill I. B. T.,
Eng. Bldg., McGill Univ.,
Montreal.

Re Y.M.C.A. Provincial Basketball League.

Dear Sir:—During the past week I have been receiving complaints regarding your team playing two men who, I am informed, have already played in games of the Senior McGill team, in the Intercollegiate League, and by so doing are not eligible to play in our league.

Section IV, Clause C, of the Constitution of the League deals with inter-collegiate players as follows:—
"Intermediate is one who has not played in more than one Senior League game this season or last (unless with the sanction of the executive)."
I shall be obliged if you will write me regarding the above, as I would like to get this matter arranged as quickly and as satisfactorily as possible.

S. S. GOODFELLOW,
Secretary.

In regard to the above communication, the management of the McGill Intermediates state as follows:—
"In the first place, the letter of the league secretary does not state the names of the men who are claimed to have broken the constitution of the league. We presume that the men in question are Harry Ferguson, who has played three games with the First McGill team, and Pringle Seath, who has played two half games with the Firsts.

Both these men started the season on the Intermediate team and later were drafted to fill vacancies on the First team. After Ferguson had played his first intercollegiate game, the captain of the Intermediates interviewed a prominent Y.M.C.A. official as to his eligibility to continue playing in the intermediate and he was assured that it was in agreement to the rules. The whole contention hinges on the question as to whether playing intercollegiate basketball makes a man a senior in the words of the Provincial League Constitution. When the Constitution of the Y.M.C.A. Provincial League was drawn up, there were Senior, Intermediate and Junior teams, each in their own division. At present there is only one Intermediate and Junior, as there is no so-called Senior league. Hence, as there is no Senior league any man is eligible to play Intermediate. The McGill team contends that playing intercollegiate basketball does not constitutionally make a man from playing in the Intermediate League.

Morris played on the defence for the first and last period. During the last session, "Bill" played a fine game, he had hard luck in his offensive movements, however, seldom getting beyond centre.

"Terry" Hall replaced Morris during the second period, and surprised the crowd with his offensive and defensive tactics. "Terry" was there with his long poke intercepting many passes.

Rainboth, at centre ice, played a strong game, his shooting has got all kinds of speed now, while he back-checked consistently.

Parsons, at rover, led many brilliant rushes, which worried the Tricolor forwards. In the last period, Eric checked back and helped the defence out, on many occasions he was instrumental in relieving an attack.

Rooney was as speedy and tricky as ever, getting away past three or four men whenever he took the notion. Rooney is about the hardest worker among the forwards.

Marson was away off colour. Andrews, who replaced him, fitted in nicely. "Pinky" was always in every play while he was on the ice.

"Dud" Ross at left played during the last two periods and showed up surprisingly well. "Dud" is not so very fast, but he gets there. His weight is a big asset, the McGill team being a very light aggregation.

Smith, in goal, for Queens, made some fine saves though he missed some easy ones.

Whyte, on the defence, was steady and aggressive, but his partner, Spence, was a little weak. Spence is only a second team man, but he played well considering it was his first game in senior company.

Rappelle, at rover, failed to show the same class that he did at Kingston in the first game of the season. While McKinnon, on the left wing, was hopelessly out in his shooting and did not seem to be able to locate Mann at all.

Dobson and Box were the whole attack for Queens, and were assisted at times by Whyte, but these men could not do it all. Box took some heavy checking, but lasted out the game, playing in a plucky manner.

SMALL CROWD.

The crowd was one of the smallest that ever witnessed a senior intercollegiate game here. However, the McGill team have shown that they can win games whether the student body at large are interested or not. Now that the team has kept itself in the running for the championship, it is the least that the students can do to support them and help them keep in the running.

Bob Meldrum, the ex-Wanderer star, handled the game in a capable manner, despite the fact that it is now seldom that he goes on the ice as a referee.

THE PLAY.

From the face-off, Box tried a shot which Kendall got possession of and rushing up along the right wing he beat Smith with his first shot. Parsons led a rush, but Dobson intercepted his pass and himself made for Mann, but Rainboth stole from him. McKinnon checked back and got the puck, but his shot went wild. Three McGill forwards came down ahead but Spence broke up their rush. Rooney regained but lost to Whyte.

Rappelle carried and shot, but Mann saved. Kendall snatched a rush, but his shot went wild. Three McGill forwards came down ahead but Spence broke up their rush. Rooney regained but lost to Whyte.

SECOND PERIOD.

Hall replaced Morris, Work replaced Rooney at right, and Ross went to left. Parsons staying off. Work off for foul. McKinnon missed an easy chance at goal. Dobson back-checked and got possession, passed to McKinnon, who lost to Kendall. Rainboth went through, but was bodied and lost his balance, his shot going wide. Rainboth off for trip. Queens have seven men to five. Rappelle tried a shot from a face-off in front of Mann, but Shorty cleared. Work on McKinnon off for trip. Work and Ross engineered a pretty rush, but Smith got Ross' shot. Kendall stopped Rappelle and took the puck up the ice, Smith saved his shot.

Dobson got possession and shot but Mann saved. There was no one there to get the rebound. Andrews cleared, passed to Ross, who shot. Hall came up, but his shot went wide. Rappelle got possession and was skated into the corner. Kendall took his pass, but he was in turn able to locate Mann at all.

"Terry" Hall cleared, but four Queens' men came down the ice ahead. "Terry" poked into a pass. Dobson got possession and went clean through but Mann rushed out and "Dobbi" hit him with the puck. A scuffle ensued around the McGill goal. Mann rushed out and checked Rappelle. Box got possession, but Hall saved, he passed to Marson, who rushed. McKinnon checked back and got possession. Work sent in a hot one which Smith saved. Whyte rushed and made things hot for the Red and White defences. Dobson tried a shot from outside which failed. Again Whyte came down the ice but Kendall cleared. McKinnon stole but his shot was too weak. Dobson, Box and Rappelle came down, but Hall intercepted. McKinnon got possession but Mann handled his shot. Kelsch replaced Rainboth. In a mix-up in front of the Queen's goal, Kendall lashed one in which just got by Smith. Queen's 2, McGill 2.

McKinnon off colour. Purvis replaced him. Purvis nearly scored a fast one. The McGill forwards were now all second team men, but they were playing a regular senior brand. Purvis tried a long one which was saved. Period ended.

THIRD PERIOD.

Right at the start of this period, Parsons rushed and shot. Ross was right on the job and banded in the rebound. Queen's 2, McGill 4. Rainboth rushed from the face. Dobson got possession and passed to McKinnon, who shot, but Mann saved. Ross cleared, but lost to Box, who rushed, but Morris cleared. Rooney rushed, but fell as he shot, sent to McKinnon who shot wild. Mann saved from Rappelle and in the scuffle for the rebound, Kendall cleared Rappelle back-checked, got possession and rushed, but his shot was too easy. Kendall rushed, but McKinnon saved, he passed to Box, but the captain's shot was wild. Rainboth got away but Smith handled his long shot. McKinnon carried the puck and gave it to Morris, who rushed, but Spence cleared. He tried Mann with a shot which "Shorty" turned easily. Ross played on defence with Morris and Kendall. Kendall stole from McKinnon and rushed up the left wing, scoring a hot one in the corner of the net. Queen's 2, McGill 5.

McKinnon shot over the fence. Ross got through and passed in front of the net, but no one was there. Parsons got away alone and couldn't beat four men. Rooney got right through after tricky dodging, but Smith rushed out and saved a sure goal. Spence cleared passed to Box. Parsons stole and passed in front of net, no one there. Whyte rushed, but Morris cleared. Parsons rushed up the left wing, scoring a hot one in the corner of the net. Queen's 2, McGill 5.

The Wicksteed Competitions Set For March

DR. HARVEY AGAIN PRESENTS TROPHY

There Is Promise of Lively Competition in Connection With Games

The date has been definitely set for the Wicksteed gymnastic competition. Two days will be required to run the whole programme, the first two days being Monday, March 8th, and Wednesday, March 10th.

The competition will be patterned somewhat after the one held last year with, however, some few changes.

DR. HARVEY'S TROPHY.

Dr. F. W. Harvey, the Medical Director of Physical Education, has again very kindly consented to give a special trophy for competition among men who have had only one year's work in the University Gym. Dr. Harvey donated a similar trophy last year which was won by Eric Cushing.

There promises to be keen competition in all divisions of the programme this year.

For the Wicksteed Silver Medal and small "M" which is for men of the graduating year there are such men as:

W. J. Mingle, Med. '15.
L. H. Leeson, Med. '15.
J. R. Dean, Arts '15, Med. '18.
R. W. Guy, Sc. '15.

For the bronze medal and small "M" there promises to be a very large entry with the following possibilities: E. M. DesBrisay, Sc. '16; J. R. Nugent, Med. '17; R. M. Deew, Sc. '16; J. E. McLeod, Sc. '17; J. L. Sanders, Arts '16, Med. '18; H. Andrews, Sc. '16; E. A. Cushing, Sc. '17; P. Falls, Med. '17; F. G. Pedley, Med. '16; W. C. Lowry, Med. '16; C. Loughery, Med. '18; G. E. Dewey, Theol. '17.

The keenest kind of competition is assured for Dr. Harvey's trophy. The following men have already signified their intentions of competing: Karl Forbes, Sc. '17; Dan. Sutherland, Sc. '17; Hastings, Sc. '18; W. A. Hoff, Arts '18; B. A. Klein, Sc. '16. The following are possibilities for this division: Weigel, Sc. '18; Elliot, Arts '18; Henderson, Med. '19; Thomas, Arts '18; Woods, Sc. '17, and Schofield, Green and Gold.

There are doubtless many others who will compete and there are bound to be some dark horses who will furnish surprises.

The competition is to include movements on the parallel bars, horse, high bar, with spring board, fence vault, and the gymnastic drill and dance.

A description of all the movements will be printed to-day and copies will probably be available for each candidate some time to-morrow.

Special practice hours have been arranged in addition to the regular gymnastic class periods.

On Wednesday, from 4.30 to 5.30 and on Saturdays at the same hour. Next week an extra hour will be put on for Thursday afternoon so that men not being able to get down at the regular periods will have ample opportunity to get lots of practice.

There was a record entry last year since the inception of this historic competition. It is confidently expected that even last year's record will this year go to the wall.

MACDONALD GIRLS WHITENASHED THE R. V. C. ASPIRANTS

The hockey match between Macdonald College and R.V.C. which was postponed from the 6th owing to the soft weather, took place Saturday morning on the Macdonald rink. The sides of the rink were lined with spectators and the match proved well worth watching for although the playing left much to be desired the teams were very evenly matched. Moreover, the excitement was kept up to the end for neither side scored until in the last half minute of a five minute overtime period Macdonald put in the winning goal.

The match consisted of three ten-minute periods and a five-minute overtime. The first period proved decidedly slow. As one of the bystanders remarked, both teams seemed to have stage fright. There was practically no combination and very little attempt at shooting. Indeed the forwards very seldom passed cover point at either end. The one bright spot in this period was Miss Jean Hodges' playing for Macdonald. Her stick handling and skating were far above the average and several times she took the puck from one end of the ice to the other only to lose it at the end through lack of support.

The second period started at a more lively pace, with each team having throughout the rest of the game. The defence on both sides proved too strong, however, for the forwards to break through alone and they seemed unable to get their passing accurate. During this period the R.V.C. forwards outplayed their opponents but Miss Hodges at rover and Miss Tenney at point were almost invariably able to check them and the goal keeper was not called upon to stop many shots, and once more the whistle blew with no goals scored.

In the third period there was a slight change in the R.V.C. line-up, Miss Wyatt and Miss Macoun replacing Miss Spier and Miss Potter. During this period the R.V.C. goal keeper, who was easily the best player in the ice gave up trying to pass to players who were never there and time after time succeeded in taking the puck down from in front of her own goal past the R.V.C. defence and it was only Miss Macann's coolness and quickness which prevented her from scoring. The R.V.C. defence was weakened in this period by a tendency on the part of the point not to stick to her position.

The R.V.C. team were also determined to score and managed to work up a little combination, but their shooting was weak and they failed to secure a goal. It was necessary to play overtime and in the last half minute Miss Leet, on a combination play, managed to shoot the puck in from the corner thus winning the match for Macdonald.

For the winners, Miss Hodges and Miss Tenney played well on the defence that their goal goal keeper had practically no opportunity of howling what she could do while Miss Leet starred at right wing.

Of the R.V.C. players Miss Currie, as rover, Miss Demuth, at right wing, and Miss McCaw, in goal were undoubtedly the best. Miss Currie played a fast game from start to finish and checked back far more effectively than the other forwards. Miss Demuth did some clever stick handling while Miss McCaw stopped a number of apparently sure shots. Miss Hodges, of Macdonald, has the knack of lifting the puck, but Miss McCaw proved quite equal to the occasion.

The chief fault with the R. V. C. seems to be that they are too slow, both in passing and shooting and thus allow their opponents to check them or intercept the pass. They are gradually learning to back check, however, and demonstrated yesterday when they played on a rink twice the size of their own that they are in good condition. A return match is to be played next Saturday, and they hope by hard

The regular Saturday afternoon march and field manoeuvres were cancelled owing to the hockey match. Many of the men availed themselves of the opportunity of watching McGill trim the speedy Kingstonians.

The regimental parades have become such an established part of the undergrads' weekly routine that many men who failed to attend the hockey match wandered around on Saturday like the hobos who had a million real iron men left to him by an unknown rich uncle.

The regular parade next Saturday has also been cancelled. The Varsity bunch will furnish the excitement and the military authorities fear that a parade, and a victory over the Blue and White, all in one day, might prove disastrous to some of the men, therefore the parade has been called off! "Nuf sed."

Besides, we don't want to make the Torontonians feel too badly and the right of all our soldiers boys, we fear, would really be too much.

It's a long, long way to St. Anne's! Those snowshoes are certainly not getting worn out very fast, but cheer it up, it will save the cost of a new outfit for the "minute men" next year.

An effort has been made to secure more rifles for the regiment, so that all men may be equipped fully on the future parades. It is expected that an additional supply will be received shortly.

An additional number of rifles would improve the appearance of the regiment, for on every big parade so far, at least one company has not been equipped.

Some misunderstanding resulted from the notice that men of D Company who were deficient in shooting could make this up last week. This, of course, only applied to men who had qualified in aiming and musketry instruction. Sections which qualify will be detailed for rifle practice in due course.

Lieut. F. B. Heward of D Company, has been appointed adjutant in place of Capt. A. R. Chipman, who has joined the McGill base hospital.

Recruiting for the McGill Overseas Regiment is going very slowly at present. Many of the men are waiting more complete details before signing up.

Members of the regiment should remember that any complaints or suggestions in connection with the regiment, should be made to the adjutant, who will be glad to talk over these matters, and also to give any information and help in a military way to the men requiring it. The adjutant will be at the armory between 5 and 6:30 p.m.

The two Saturday parades were cancelled so that the men might attend the hockey match. A very small number of men showed up at the game. When the authorities cancel the drills the men should meet them half way and in doing this they will also help the hockey team and a little support is a great help toward winning games. Get out on Saturday, Boys.

Harvard-Harvard graduates numbering 3,144 hold 55,447 degrees from various colleges, including Harvard, according to figures compiled by Prof. Edson L. Whitney, '85. About 30 per cent of these men hold two or more Harvard degrees. James Bryce, former British ambassador to this country, holds the largest number of degrees, two from Harvard and 20 from other colleges. Theodore Roosevelt and S. N. Newcomb each have 18 degrees. President Emeritus Eliot has 11 titles, and President Lowell has 10.

The figures compiled by Professor Whitney are as follows: Holders of one Harvard degree 14,337; holders of two or more Harvard degrees, 8,154; holders of one Harvard and one or more other degrees, 7,596; holders of two or more Harvard and one or more other degrees, 1,057.

James Creelman, the Montreal Boy Who Picked Up Type Swept From the Newspaper Offices

Something of the Career of the Boy who Ran Away from his Home in Montreal, when Twelve Years of Age—Printer's "Devil" to Successful War Correspondent—Almost Mortally Wounded in the Cuban War—Dies in Berlin at Age of 55

Washington, Feb. 12.—James Creelman, well-known American newspaper correspondent, died in Berlin to-day, after an illness of several weeks. The State Department was notified by Ambassador Gerard. Mr. Creelman, whose home was in New York, was 53 years of age.

Such was the brief mention which the morning newspapers made Saturday of the death of one of the leaders of modern American journalism, a man who was born in this city and got his start as a printer in Montreal. It is true that this was not a considerable but it paved the way for the career which he afterwards made in his profession.

An account of James Creelman's early life and of his rise to greatness reads like a chapter from a Harryatt. He was the son of Matthew Creelman, who came to this country early in the last century and resided in Montreal for many years, engaged in his occupation as an officer of the Steam Inspection Assurance Company. As a small boy he attended the Royal Arthur school in this city, at the same time keeping his eyes open for any odd jobs which might fall his way. Very early in life, he was seized with the ambition to become a journalist, and used to frequent the city newspaper offices in order to familiarize himself with the workings of the print shop. Possessing in a marked degree the quality of resourcefulness which has proved so great an asset in the equipment of the journalist, he would carefully hoard all the odd pieces of type which might be swept from the composing room, and with his prize return home and produce some sort of crude print. At the age of twelve he became dissatisfied with his lot and determined to face the world alone. One day he ran away from home, thoroughly filled with determination to make his way in life, and crossing the St. Lawrence, set out for the city of New York, which, then, as now, offered an attraction to the run-away-from-home class, which no other city possesses. After many hardships, Creelman finally reached New York, where he covered the greater part of the journey on foot, with occasional lifts on railway trains.

Creelman immediately started upon a round of the newspaper offices of the city in search of employment as a printer. After a time he found him working at the case in the office of "Church and State," at the same time qualifying to better fit himself for his life work, by attending the Lay Theological College in the city, conducted by the celebrated Dr. Talmage. By 1876 he had progressed in his studies to so great an extent as to warrant his appointment as a reporter on the staff of the New York Herald. Thence his rise was rapid. It was only a few years before he was promoted to be a correspondent of the paper at the same time doing considerable editorial writing, remaining as such until 1892. A year later the editorial chair of the London edition of the great newspaper fell vacant. Creelman was selected to fill the vacant vacancy, being transferred in the following year to a similar position in charge of the Paris edition of the publication. By this time, Creelman's ability as a newspaperman had received wide recognition, and more than one newspaper was endeavoring to gain his connection. To one of these inducements he succumbed, leaving the New York Herald to hold for a brief time the position of editor of a contemporary, the New York Telegram. His connection with this newspaper was, however, only of brief duration. A chance came when Creelman accepted the position of editor of the British edition of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Mr. Creelman's career as a war correspondent opened at the time of the Japanese war of 1894, when he was sent into the field as representative of the New York World, accomplishing his mission with the greatest success. Three years later, when the Greco-Turkish trouble was fanned into a blaze, Creelman's services were secured by the New York Journal, and he accompanied the fleet to Constantinople. He remained for several years, being through both the Cuban war of 1898 and the Philippines trouble of 1899 during the period. Unlike present-day correspondents, Creelman was not content with remaining behind the firing line, but holding a rank in the American army, was frequently in the thick of the fight, thus having exceptional opportunities of obtaining authentic information for his paper. At El Caney, Cuba, in 1898, he suffered a wound which was the despair of the army surgeons for a long period after capturing a Spanish flag and receiving the surrender of the garrison.

Upon the conclusion of the trouble in the Philippines, Creelman returned to the States and for some months was in charge of the editorial page of the New York Journal. Subsequently he acted for a time as Washington correspondent of the paper. In 1900 he was engaged as special and editorial writer by the New York World, holding this post with signal success until 1906, when he became associated in the editorship of Pearson's Magazine. Under his direction this popular monthly publication rose to one of the highest points in its career. Since 1910 he had been engaged in free lance work. He was in Berlin acting in behalf of an American newspaper, when death called him. The name of James Creelman was known to the reading public through a vast number of magazine articles which appeared under it during a long association with the American newspaper and periodical press. Three works in book form were perhaps not so well known. These were "On the Great Highway," "Eagle Blood," and "Why We Love Lincoln." Some years ago, Creelman was referred to as the premier reporter in American journalism. To say that he was entitled to that distinction at the present day, would be a wide claim; at any rate we may rest assured that his contribution to the literature of this time, had he been spared, would have been well worth reading. Creelman knew how to write, and write well.

War Summary

These Articles Are Specially Written for the McGill Daily and will be Published each Day.

FRANCE

Along the German lines in the Argonne heavy reinforcements have been brought up. The French artillery, however, repulsed all attacks, causing heavy losses to the Germans. Around La Bassee the German activity has been temporarily checked but it is believed that the enemy are only waiting until more artillery is brought up to attack again. In Lorraine, German attacks near Arracourt were repulsed. The French airmen dropped bombs on the German aerodrome at Habsheim in Alsace. The amount of damage is not known.

BELGIUM

The chief event of interest was the British air raid on the German bases on the Belgium coast, Friday. The raid which was the largest in history was carried out by thirty-four British aviators in aeroplanes and sea-planes. The British authorities state that considerable damage was done at Ostend and Blankenbergh.

RUSSIA

The Russian military authorities state that the Russian retirement is a purely strategic move and that the result of the advance on Koenigsberg which was designed to relieve the pressure on Warsaw has been amply successful. Activities have taken place on the lower Vistula near Lyck and in the region of Sierpee.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

In the Carpathians the Russians have repulsed the enemy at Svidnik and Rostoka. The battle of the Dukla Pass has been resumed and is mostly hand-to-hand fighting.

ITALY

The Italian Government last week appropriated $34,000,000 for further military expenses until July 1915. It is reported that Austria has confiscated two wheat steamers in the Adriatic.

More Rifles and Uniforms For The Battalion

Col. Starke Brings this Information on his Return from Ottawa

On his return from Ottawa Thursday, Lieut.-Col. Starke announced that the McGill Battalion would receive a further issue of one hundred rifles. This will considerably facilitate training as up to the present time the deficiency in rifles has been a severe hindrance to the Battalion.

While in Ottawa, Col. Starke made further efforts to arrange for the McGill Battalion supplying engineers for overseas services. He interviewed the commanding officer of the Engineering unit now mobilizing at Ottawa, but was informed that there were no vacancies with the exception of a few positions as sappers and drivers.

With regard to the spring camp, he stated that the matter was receiving favorable consideration, but that no definite decision had been arrived at. Col. Starke also stated that one hundred new uniforms had been ordered and would be ready for issue in the next few days.

ARTS SOPHOMORES TAUGHT FRESHMEN A NEEDED LESSON

The Arts Freshmen were not able to turn the trick on the Sophomores on Saturday in the second hockey game between the two classes, devotees of our public winter pastime. In the play-off for the faculty championship '17 beat '18 by the close score of 2-1, after a very hard game. '18 still were not satisfied and they challenged '17 to another tussle last Saturday.

The Freshmen had about a double team out and the Sophs, had barely a six-man team and these few were all nearly in a state of coma from recent festivities, etc.

With MacKenzie of Arts '16 refereeing, the teams lined up about 10.20, and played a hard game with '18, continually substituting fresh Freshies, till 11.05. Then with the score 2-1 for '17, '18, the same old team demanded a respite and half time ensued. '18 score first, McGibbon doing the deed on a nice play. Cassidy of '17 answered with a beauty in off a rebound, and '18 then most contrarily put another in.

The game was fast and clean, but there was no combination on either side. Magor, of Arts '17, was not quite up to his championship standard, being a bit off his feed. McGibbon, of the Freshies, was playing a fast, hard game continually boring in on the '17 defence, and Martin, of the wing, was an able supporter, his shot putting in the 2nd goal for his side.

The trouble was that the men were not covering their opponents properly and in this, especially at centre where Ritchie generally abides, '17 were a bit weak.

The second half started out just as fast. By this time a healthy crowd had taken sides and the players were stirred to further action by outside shouts. Following a long period during which play was very even, Cassidy again did almost the same as he had done before, by batting in a rebound. The regular time up saw the score thus even 2-2. It was decided to play five minutes each way.

Arts '17 woke up and apparently on account of good training, ran in two or three more goals. Steve Allan, a converted forward showed up especially well in this period, putting in a nice one. Play was a little more interesting too. Magor was jolted badly enough to take a rest and his place was taken by Hibbard of '16. MacDermot, too, was obliged to leave and give Magor another chance, when he hit the ice hard.

The game ended without further score. Arts '17, however, will have to play more combination if they want to beat Science '17, and judging from Saturday's game, in any case there will be a shake-up in the position of the men in the play-off.

Of the Freshies, Cassidy in goal, McGibbon at centre and Martin on the wing, played well, while Cassidy, Allan and Keir, did sterling work for the Sophs.

The game was ably managed by the professional, rather extensive, referee, MacKenzie, of Arts '16.

The dinner was characterized by an entire absence of anything objectionable, in fact the function was a true success. The following members of the Students' Orchestra performed very acceptably: J. D. Robinson, J. O'Regan, C. J. Tidmarsh, Yves Lamontagne, E. Lunney, H. F. Williamson.

The dinner arrangements were made by the following committee: Pres., A. Hibbard.

Stoke Up The Furnace Of Business

"Advertising is exactly like running a furnace. If you want a big fire, you have to keep shovelling coal. Stop stoking and the fire goes out. To prove this, just go over some big advertising 'Successes' that used to be. See what happened to them when the men behind them stopped shovelling coal into the business furnace. That is why I have doubled my advertising—I want to double my sales."

Advertising is the key to business success—it is to business what the Ignition System is to an automobile.

MED. BANQUET RECHRISTENED "WAR DINNER"

care, and for that reason the nurses and all attendants must be properly qualified. Dr. Birkett gratefully acknowledged the splendid support which had been accorded the authorities already, and mentioned particularly gifts which had been received within the last few days, money from Sir Thomas and Lady Roddick, two modern motor ambulances (one from Mrs. W. S. Miller) and various sums of money amounting to some $2,700. This will be used for special equipment which the Government does not supply, such as X-ray outfits. Dean Birkett stated that he had been informed that Dr. Geddes, Prof. of Anatomy, who has been with the British Army since October, has been placed second in command of a new unit created by the War Department, and the paraphernalia necessary to carry on scientific work. Two Americans have offered to send supplies to the hospital throughout the period of the war.

Dr. R. P. Campbell, who returned last week from Salisbury, where he has been in charge of the military hospital, stated that the troops were over in France by this time.

Dr. Campbell said that the Canadians were doing very well notwithstanding the fact that things did not always run smoothly, but most of those who went over were ready to make the best of it.

Charles E. Martin, M.D., '92, professor of medicine, proposed the health of the graduating class, which was responded to in a very humorous speech by Otto Demuth, '15.

E. J. Scully, '17, proposed the toast to the Sister Universities to which representatives from the University of Toronto, Queen's and Laval (Montreal and Quebec) replied.

The dinner was characterized by an entire absence of anything objectionable, in fact the function was a true success. The following members of the Students' Orchestra performed very acceptably: J. D. Robinson, J. O'Regan, C. J. Tidmarsh, Yves Lamontagne, E. Lunney, H. F. Williamson.

CLINIC AT R. V. C.

Saturday morning at 10.30, Dr. L. T. Barker, Dr. John Hopkins Medical School, gave a clinic at the Royal Victoria Hospital, before an audience of house physicians and professors which filled the large medical theatre completely.

Dr. Barker held his clinic on two patients who were suffering from enlargement of the thyroid gland. Prof. Barker, who has a most pleasing personality, gave a most lucid and interesting lecture, based on the cases and revealed a keen perception of the underlying conditions of this malady in which he has been especially interested for some time.

Some of Dr. Barker's general observations were instructive. Speaking to the graduating class, he said: "Don't forget that it is old-fashioned to examine part only of your patients—never be too busy to examine from head to foot, every patient who presents himself at your office. Each case must be studied and treated individually, for frequently what is beneficial for one is detrimental to another. Every disease or weakness has a whole series of variations which may express themselves in any number of different ways." Another interesting conclusion which the lecturer placed before the assembly was that the medical profession was beginning to appreciate the whole train of disorders traceable to old sores. He gave as his opinion that many of the troubles of middle life and old age, such as arthritis—hardening of the arteries, aneuria, etc., are due in many instances, to faulty mouth conditions.

Prof. C. P. Martin introduced the speaker, who has been referred to as the "ablest medical student ever turned out by Toronto University." Dr. Martin remarked amid cheers that Dr. Barker had lived in the United States for many years, and had retained his Canadian citizenship.

At the conclusion of the excellent clinic, Dr. Adams expressed the thanks of those present to the lecturer.

McGILL TO CLASH WITH MONTREALS IN CITY LEAGUE

There is to be great activity in the City League this week. In order to finish the league in time to let the winners challenge for the Allan cup two series will be played this week, one to-night and one Thursday night. To-night will be a stager what should prove to be three of the most exciting games of the season. Laval and Shamrocks will play in the first game this evening. These two teams should put up a good game. Although they are down in the league race they have kept the leaders moving and as there is no love lost between these two aggregations the game should be fast and hard.

The best game of the evening will be that between the Vics. and Nationals. Whichever team loses this game drops out of the tie now existing between the three teams: Vics., Nationals and M.A.A.A.

McGill and M.A.A.A. will come together in the last game of the evening. When these two teams met early in the season the game ended in a tie. Since then both teams have improved remarkably and a fast game is anticipated.

The McGill team will have quite recovered from Saturday's game with Queen's and are prepared to take the M.A.A.A. team into camp and upset all the calculations regarding the draw. The team that represented McGill against Queen's will most likely take the ice against the M.A.A.A. tonight. It is hoped that there will be a much larger number of McGill supporters on hand than there was Saturday afternoon.
